THE Hongkong Telegraph.

HONGKONG, 6TH JANUARY, 1882.

MOST of our readers will doubtless have heard of the Shanghai morning paper, the North China Daily News. A few, very few we should imagine, may possibly read that well known journal. The N. C. Daily News is generally considered and doubtless justly so, one of the best paying newspaper properties in China; and we are informed by those qualified by experience to pass an opinion on such matter, that in by gone years it was really a first class paper, famed for its enterprise in obtaining the latest news, and for possessing a thoroughly competent literary staff. We need hardly say that these halcyon days have gone, with very little probability of their ever returning. The N. C. Daily News, like the Hongkong Daily Press is one of those old established institutions, which depends for its existence on its ancient reputation. As a newspaper it has descended so low, that for some considerable time past, it has been made the butt of every tongue in the Model Settlement. Even the best reputations wear threadbare in time, and our high toned contemporary will very soon find that in order to keep pace with enterprising journals like the Mercury and Courier, it will be necessary to inaugurate a very different policy to that now in vogue in the Hankow Road establishment.

Why should we bother our head about the N. C. Daily News? Well, under ordinary circumstances we should certainly have hesitated before making any allusion whatever to our effete contemporary; but it so happens that the respected editor of the News, apparently getting tired of abusing his brother editors in Shanghai, has thought fit to go out of his way to favor ourselves with a specimen of what he evidently considers polished sarcasm. We have hitherto abstained most scrupulously from adversely criticising the notorious differences which for some considerable time have existed between the various literary representatives of the Shanghai press, believing that outsiders had really no justification for interfering in matters which were, to a very great extent, of a personal character. Our own lot has not been cast in such pleasant times that we could afford to criticise our Northern neighbours; and it has been a matter of some satisfaction that notwithstanding the acrimonious character of our disputes with the China Mail, only two newspapers published in the Far East, namely the Japan Gazette and the N. C. Daily News, have had the execrable taste to interfere in what, to those who know anything at all about the subject, can only be regarded as differences of a purely local character, which could not possibly have the slightest interest for any person, or any section of society, outside the Colony of Hongkong. We are far from claiming anything approaching perfection in journalistic style; we confess that the contemptible policy of our evening contemporary has compelled us frequently to use stronger language than is usual in a public newspaper, and can only plead in justification that we have been sorely tried, and that our adversary was incapable either of appreciating or comprehending the rules of journalistic etiquette, or the courtesies which in well bred circles invariable pass between gentlemen; but we cannot see that we have in any way laid ourselves open to the high and mighty censorship of the eminent noodle who sways the destinies of the Shanghai morning paper. The editor of the China Mail publicly, and without the last provocation or justification that we are acquainted with, with that suavity of manner, and high bred politeness which is his distinguishing characteristic, styled the Telegraph, a rival newspaper, "a rag." We courteously retorted that the China Mail was "a gutter publication," which made us quits. We were publicly accused of being bribed by the Governor of Hongkong to libel one of his subordinates, and of having our columns suborned. As we could neither tolerate or submit to charges of a damaging character, which were made out of pure spite and had not the slightest shadow of foundation, we did not beat about the bush, but exposed the malicious lies in language of the plainest description. The modern Bayard of the Shanghai press thinks for reasons we can readily guess that we should have tamely and patiently submitted to having our character misrepresented, and the prospects of the Telegraph as an honorable and independent public organ, scattered to the winds by the false accusations of the China Mail; and so he tries vainly to "whitewash his friendly critic at our expense. And so we have been compelled to devote a portion of our space and time to the Shanghai paper and its editor.

There is an old saying to the effect that people who live in glass houses should never throw stones, which we respectfully commend to the notice of the Northern oracle. Are the relations of the editor of the N. C. Daily News with the other members of the Shanghai press of such a character as to justify his interference in our local affairs? Let us look back a little, and the public will judge for themselves. The circumstances which only a short time ago placed the present editor in his high and responsible position are well known. He was a gentleman with a great literary reputation, and his general erudition was supposed to be extensive and profound. Possibly he deserved all the eulogistic notices published by his friendly critics, conspicuous among the number being the China Mail, and theoretically he may be a second Crichton. Practically, and as editor of a public newspaper, he has already been weighed in the balance and found sadly wanting. People who have the patience to wade through the columns of milk and water twaddle which do duty for leading articles; and who can afford the time to peruse the redundant verbiage, the serried array of stale truisms dragged in day after day to illustrate the learned writer's hazy ideas on special hobbies, must be few and far between. The leaders in the N. C. Daily News have been truthfully and pitifully described by the Courier as an intolerable number of words meaning nothing. This worthy editor who sets himself up as "a chaste and gentlemanly critic" of the Telegraph must possess an unpleasantly short and inconvenient memory! Has he so soon forgotten the extraordinary conduct which marked the inauguration of his second editorial life in Shanghai? With gentlemanly politeness he commenced his career by styling with childish frivolity the Mercury, one of the most reliable and best conducted newspapers in the East "an evening exchange." Such a gratuitous insult can hardly be justified; but this noodle editor, the special friend, advocate, and apologist of the China Mail, went even further, and actually had the impertinence to speak of his contemporaries as "the pariah papers of Shanghai." As a matter of course the editors of the other papers refused to submit quietly to be termed "pariahs;" and with quiet sarcasm they retorted by nicknaming the mighty one, "the Brahmin editor." This is all very childish of course, but the height of pettiness was surely reached when this self-appointed censor actually was mean enough to refuse to continue the usual exchange with the Mercury because that journal hit straight out from the shoulder, and not in the kid-glove style of argument. We have said enough. The editor of the North China Daily News will do well, before interfering in what concerned him not, to set his own house in order. He will require all the breath he can spare to keep his own porridge cool.

We note that the departure of the Mitsui Bishi Mail Co.'s steamer Niigata Maru, which had been indefinitely postponed, has been fixed for Sanlay morning, mails to close at 9 a.m.

By an advertisement in another column, it will be seen that Willard's Wanderers will repeat, by desire, their performance of the "Forty Thieves" to-morrow evening at the Theatre Royal, City Hall.

The following telegram, which was received yesterday afternoon, speaks for itself:—"The Russian Government has virtually embargoed the Roumanian tribute, and claimed priority for 23,630,000 francs as expenses of the army of occupation."

The Inconstant, 16, screw frigate, Captain Charles C. P. Fitzgerald, arrived in harbour this afternoon from a cruise. The Inconstant had a slight defect in her rudder, which, having been made good, has during her cruise outside been found to be in perfect order.

We would remind our readers that the members of the Choral Society will perform at the City Hall Theatre this evening, W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan's comic operetta "The Pirates of Penzance." We understand that the whole of the seats have been taken, and hear that the representation is likely to prove a most successful one.

A telegram from London dated the 3rd inst. reports that M. Roustan, well known as the French Minister in Tunis, stated in reply to an address, that the French Government would maintain the results acquired by their recent successes in that country. This may be taken to mean that Tunis will in future be a province of the great European Republic, notwithstanding all previous declarations to the contrary.

MACAO.

Macao, 30th December, 1881.

In my last I stated that the only corrective of philosophical error is a strict adherence to sound principles and a strict system of logical deduction. Philosophical principles are of such an abstract and transcendental nature, that unless they be clearly expressed, and demonstrated with a mathematical precision, they are open to doubt; and uncertainty leads to error. When a philosophical proposition cannot be proved to such a certainty that its converse be a glaring contradiction, the thesis becomes either an hypothesis or a paradox; the conclusion deduced from it exceeds the premises and is consequently fallacious. If this principle, "Every effect has its cause" be not proved ad satisfactionem, who would be able to infer from it that the whole universe and mankind are creations, contingent, not necessary beings? What value would then be attached to Cicero's description of the order of nature as well as to his inference that there exists a supreme Cause of all causes? Who would be convinced of Paley's beautiful reasoning from objects of art to the sublime Artist? Who would descend upon Creation, like Hervey, and venerate the Creator, unless taught by the light of Revelation? The whole philosophy, as such, ought to be brought to bear on that important principle of causality; an imperfect or a fallacious knowledge of it has produced Pantheism in Ontology, Materialism in Psychology, Atheism in Natural Theology, Scopticism in every thing. The Pantheist, above all, absurd as he is, generally starts from a definite demonstration of the principle "Every effect has its cause." He finds the very principle inconsistent with itself, the very assertion begging the question; for "effect" means something made, produced or caused; and to say that "what is caused has its cause," is evidently begging the question. The Positivists substitute phenomena and things to effects; but he maintains that phenomena are governed by laws, and laws are not causes. Now, if we are to maintain as we do, that both Pantheism and ultra-Positivism are errors, we ought to show that the principle of causality is true; philosophy ought to employ all its resources in demonstrating the value of that principle, or there should be no philosophy at all.

By what process does the Lyceum Philosophy undertake to demonstrate that vital principle? Whether we look at it as a deductive, as an inductive, or as a mixed system of philosophy, we do not find the principle of causality demonstrated in its right place. This is not to be wondered at, as not even Logic occupies its right place in the course adopted by the Lyceum, being preceded by Psychology. In a purely deductive system of science, general principles should occupy the first place; should be fully discussed and clearly demonstrated before a single truth is deduced from them, unless we wish all the succeeding corollaries to be mere assumptions. In a purely inductive system, general principles should be deduced from an assemblage of all particular cases and facts subject to observation and experimental analysis; but every series of facts should be made subservient to and consistent with the general conclusion by a process of logical derivation. In a mixed system, general principles should be demonstrated whenever they are called forth to elucidate a particular case. In whatever system we adopt in philosophy, general principles should never be assumed, or conclusions drawn from such assumptions. But this is exactly what takes place in the Lyceum philosophy, with what consistency, we will presently ascertain.

The first point mentioned in the programme, and styled "Intuitive philosophy" is only a review of a few anthropological facts concerning sensation, the nervous system, the organs of external and internal sensibility. At the very threshold of philosophy, after a few descriptions of the faculty of human sensibility as manifested in its organs, this momentous inference is made: There exists in man a plastic agent, distinct from mere sensibility, superior to it, the human soul. In other words, the existence of the human soul is supposed to be fully demonstrated by the fact that man feels and is a sensitive animal. During the whole first year's course, not another word is said about this principle or cause—the soul; during the second year, a regular demonstration is undertaken to prove its existence and its spiritual nature; but how is the student, before he comes to study the nature and faculties of soul, to rest contented with such a fallacious argument in favor of its existence as that derived from the simple facts of sensation? Are not animals gifted with sensation? But do they reason? Have they intellects? Can they study philosophy? The defect of such an inference is simply the result of a misapplication of the principle of causality. A cause has been assigned to an effect which it never produced. There is nothing found in anthropological phenomena that reveals the existence of a spiritual agent as their cause. The existence of a soul can only be proved by its own acts, by its intellectual faculties and by its free will. To infer its existence from mere sensation is a fallacy pure and simple; a fallacy that is easily explained when we take into consideration that anti-methodical system of philosophy which leaves logic in the background.

The principle of causality, which is the only foundation of philosophy, is not discussed in its right place, viz., before the first conclusion was to be drawn, from sensations, as effects or facts, to the spiritual principle of life, or the soul. Nor do we find that principle thoroughly discussed and demonstrated in any part of the Lyceum programme. It must, undoubtedly, be presumed or assumed as true, infallibly true, as to be taken for granted. Now, had the authors of such a philosophy only perused the works of the leading Positivists, they would have seen how that simple principle has been quarrelled upon, contested, denied. Is it not the province of philosophy to vindicate its most fundamental principle?

When an appeal is made to the principle of causality, to prove, in Natural Theology, the existence of a Supreme Cause, new logical blunders are to be found in the Lyceum course of Philosophy. The first argument brought forward is "that matter is not eternal." These are the textual words of the detailed programme. "Arguments against the sophism of the eternity of matter. 1st.—Let it be proved that there exist effects or contingent beings. 2nd.—That they must have a cause, which should not partake of the nature of an effect, and that this cause is the necessary being, the being that exists per se. 3rd.—That there is only one necessary being indivisible and spiritual, who is God." Here we have a reasoning stating that matter is not eternal; for according to Lyceum reasoning, matter is not eternal, because it is contingent. What is a contingent being? A being that does not exist by itself, and therefore has once commenced to exist; therefore matter is not eternal because it has commenced to exist. Can philosophy point out that commencement? Certainly not. Therefore we are come to this pretty mode of arguing: Because matter is contingent, it is not eternal; we are unable to prove by philosophy that matter has had a commencement, or that it shall see an end; therefore matter is not eternal, and consequently there exists an Eternal Being who made matter.

This is sheer absurdity. Reason, without the help of Revelation, is capable of proving the existence of a Supreme Being, but surely not such a reasoning as that which proceeds from the non-eternity of matter. By a just application of the principle of causality, the existence of a Supreme Creator can be proved to almost a mathematical certainty. The principle of causality embraces both matter and spiritual beings, and proves that every existing thing, omne ens, has a sufficient reason of its existence; that this reason is not found in the being itself, because it is continually changing, from existence to non-existence, from one way of existence to another; that the changes of nature are periodical or cyclical, evincing a constant order, that order cannot be explained by itself, as matter is inert, and therefore it presupposes an ordainer and creator. True philosophy, before reaching this grand conclusion, discusses and demonstrates the analytical value of the principle taken as the basis of reasoning; never assumes it, nor takes as a stand point of a momentous question such a controvertible and obscure axiom as the non-eternity of matter.

As the Lyceum philosophy advances no other proof of the most important truth that human reason can discover, besides the fallacious argument alluded to, we must conclude that the system held up as a model is extremely weak where it should be strongest, and consequently, instead of praise, it deserves severe criticism and correction.

SPAIN AND PORTUGAL.

The interview of King Alfonso XII. with Dom Louis of Portugal, which took place in Caceres, a little town situated on the frontier of the two kingdoms, although cordial, had nevertheless a comical side.

It is related that the two sovereigns had to meet one another without any previous arrangement, and that the object of their rendezvous, as Spanish statesmen declared, was of a character of mere bon voisinage, in consequence of the opening of a new railroad connecting the two countries, and was, therefore, void of any of political importance.

As is usual in such cases, there was a lunch with its obligatory toasts. The young ruler of Spain, who has always been animated by the idea of regaining for his country at least a part of that grandeur which it has lost through a mistaken and unfortunate policy, wished to sound his neighbour about the possibility of an Iberian union. The time allowed for the interview being rather limited, and the moment of the departure of Dom Louis approaching, Alfonso took the opportunity of the general merriment, reigning during the dessert, to give a toast to the sister nation, saying that it would be well for each should the two countries follow the same policy and work unitedly to fulfil a common destiny. King Louis had to reply. Now it is notorious that the descendants of Vasco da Gama are much opposed to such a policy as that sketched by King Alfonso, and that an Iberian union has at present no supporters in Portugal, who can never forget that the period of her decay began with the famous sixty years of Spanish domination. In such circumstances the reply had to be very clear, taking into account the ill feeling which would have been evoked in Lisbon, should the royal speech not have fully represented the public opinion of the Portuguese. Dom Louis in toasting the prosperity of Spain acted as a constitutional King should. He said that the best entente for the two nations would be that Spain and Portugal should remain completely free and independent one of the other, each guarding her own special interests, or in other words:—"We do not wish to contract any defensive alliance with you: we desire no Iberian union."

How Senor Segasta and Don Alfonso felt at that moment it is not difficult to conceive.—Japan Weekly Mail.

The following appointments to the China Station are gazetted:—Lieut. H. H. Douglas to the Maggie, vice Baker; Sub-Lieut. G. S. Shackburgh, to the Iron Duke; Engineer Charles Lane, to the Victor Emanuel, additional for Hongkong Yard, vice Shapcott.

We understand that instructions have been sent by the Russian Admiralty to the China Station for the clippers Platoon and Vostok to proceed on a cruise to Australia. This will leave on the Station only the flagship frigate Prince Pjarsky, the cruiser Asia, the clippers Strelak and Abrek, and two gunboats.

At the meeting of the Law Amendment Society on the 21st inst., Sir John Smale, as announced in our last issue, gave the opening address. Sir John referred more particularly to the subject of Slavery in Hongkong, and asserted that the official papers about to be issued on the subject will show that there are still twenty thousand persons "bond servants," held by bills of sale and similar devices. The bondage system is admitted to be expressly contrary to the Queen's Proclamation of 1854, enforcing the abolition of slavery, but it is no protection against kidnapping, nor does it deter from the worst forms of detention in brothels and domestic servitude. Sir John produced the original, and read a translation of a bill of sale drawn in Chinese, and consigning a lad on the part of his parents to slavery.

LONDON CHARTERED BANK OF AUSTRALIA.

The half-yearly extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the London Chartered Bank of Australia was held on Nov. 11, at the City Terminus Hotel. Mr. J. Q. Henriques presided, and stated that the only business before the meeting was the declaration of an interim dividend. It was not usual at these half-yearly meetings to enter minutely into the figures of the bank's business, but the statement presented showed a steady improvement for the past half-year. The plethora of money in many of the Australian colonies still continued, and might for some time yet keep down their profits, but they were indications of a greater demand for money, and a larger margin for banking profits might prevail next year. A discussion followed, in which Messrs. Hirst (Bedford), R. Minton, Lamont, Young, and other shareholders took part, and dissatisfaction was expressed at the decrease in the dividend paid by the bank from 8 per cent. to 7, 6, and now 5 per cent. The chairman, in reply, stated that the directors had been lectured on several occasions by Mr. Minton, who, however, never suggested anything practical, so far as he was able to judge. As to the proposal that a section of the directors should go out to the colonies, he would ask for what practical purpose? If they were not satisfied with their officers in the colonies, let a change be made; but they had the strongest reason to be satisfied with the present management of their bank, and their superintendent there, Mr. Guthrie, was one of the most able bankers they had ever had. Unfortunately, they had suffered from mismanagement, and they were now experiencing some of its effects. They were endeavouring to reconstruct their position. He could confidently assure them that the profits they had earned were really profits made out of the bank's business, and the recoveries they had made from securities in their hands were still kept apart from those profits. The hoped at a future time—perhaps at the next meeting—to inform the proprietors to what extent they had recovered, and he was sanguine that they would report a large improvement. The half-year had been very favourable as regarded bad and doubtful debts. He then moved the declaration of a dividend for the half-year at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum (carrying forward 10,669, as against 4,268, last half-year). Mr. Morrison (auditor), in seconding the motion, expressed an opinion that they had erred too much on the side of caution. The bank had in London 650,000, in first-class securities, on which not one penny was borrowed, and 600,000, out on loan at short notice. The motion was carried unanimously.

The Marquis of Huntley has left England. His residence, Aboyne Castle, was advertised to be let. Mr. Cunliffe-Brookes has leased it for his daughter, the Marchioness of Huntley. A screw loose somewhere.

General the Hon. St. George Gerald Foley, C.B., has been appointed to the colonelcy of the South Staffordshire Regiment, in succession to General Sir R. Wilbraham, K.C.B. He served in the Crimean campaign of 1854-55 as Assistant Commissioner at the headquarters of the French army, and was present at the battles of Alma, Balaclava, Inkermann, and Tchernaya, and the siege and fall of Sebastopol (medal with four clasps, brevet of Lieut.-Colonel, C.B., officer of the Legion of Honour, Fourth Class of the Medjidie, and Turkish medal). He served as military secretary to the expeditionary force in China from March, 1857, to February 1860; was present at the capture of Canton in December, 1857 (brevet of Colonel), and other engagements in the vicinity. Served throughout the campaign as British Commissioner at the headquarters of the French army in China in February, 1860, to March, 1861, and was present at the storming and capture of the Taku Forts, the actions of the 18th and 21st September, in the latter commanding 200 artillerymen, fifty Chasseurs d'Afrique, and a squadron of Fane's Horse (horse shot); mentioned in French despatches, and made a Commander of the Legion of Honour, and subsequent advance on Peking (good-service pension, medal with clasp).

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

THIS DAY, Four P.M.

Brokers are finding plenty of occupation at present, business in a number of stocks continuing exceedingly brisk. The largest transactions we have to report to-day have been in the stock of the Hongkong, Canton, and Macao Steamboat Company. An extensive business has been done for cash at 26 per share premium, and on time at 27½ for January 31st a large number of transfers have been effected. The shares remain very firm in the market, and even for cash none could be procured at less than 27. A small business has been noted in the scrip of the China Traders Insurance Company at the quoted rate—1,550 per share. Hongkong Fires have been inquired after, and there are several commissions in the market to purchase at 92½; but so far as we have been able to learn, no shares are on offer at that figure. Docks continue to attract a good deal of attention, and now that the hollow character of the recent scare in connection with this popular medium for investment has been thoroughly exposed, public confidence has been restored, and the healthy condition of the Company fully confirmed. We hardly think it probable that we shall see the shares rushed up to the extraordinarily high quotation of last July, at least for some considerable time; but we are fully prepared to see them maintain, if they do not improve upon, the present rate. A fair amount of business has been booked to-day at 41 per cent. premium for cash, and 45 for the end of the month, the stock leaving off firm. Sugars have been negotiated at 162 for January 31st to a considerable extent, and we fancy market indications point to a still further rise. We have heard prophetic utterances about this stock climbing as high as 200, but on this point we must confess to feeling rather sceptical. We have also to chronicle a few sales of Ice shares at 130, and a few more are on offer at the same rate. Banks rather quiet are at present, and no business worth mentioning has been noted since our last issue; inquiries by would-be buyers having failed to induce holders to sell at 116 per cent. premium, which is the price offered.

Where will our hero-worship end? A Melbourne man works a flattened bullet from the Glanowan field on his watch chain, a Tasmanian lady has a lock of Bertrand's hair, and we are told a sporting groveller here has sent home for the sole of Fred Archer, the English jockey's, boot. By the way, smart as Fred is, he never "gruelled" a Derby winner along in 2.41—as we did in Melbourne. Of course Pendergon will say the time was taken by an old Dutch clock, but "Let the galled jade buck."

NEW DIRECTORY

FOR THE FAR EAST.

A NEW DIRECTORY FOR CHINA, JAPAN, AND THE PHILIPPINES,

FOR THE YEAR 1882,

WILL BE PUBLISHED,

PRICE TWO DOLLARS,

ENTITLED

"THE HONGKONG DIRECTORY AND HONG LIST FOR THE FAR EAST."

THE above work will be published on the 1st of January next, at the office of this Paper, and will contain a Directory of the Ports in the large portion of Asia comprised between Ponnang, in the Straits Settlements, and the Northern Ports, including Formosa; the Treaty Ports of China and Japan; the Philippine Islands; the British Colony of Hongkong; and the Portuguese Colony of Macao. The work will also contain the Principal Treaties between European countries and the United States and the countries East of the Straits, together with conditions of Trade, and the Port, Customs, Consular and Harbour Regulations for the Ports of China and Japan; and a description of the Ports, with the latest Trade Statistics taken from the Reports of the Imperial Maritime Customs and other reliable sources.

The various Governments and Municipal Corporations will be applied to for information, and all Public Bodies and Companies, Bankers, Merchants, Consuls, and Professional and other Residents, will supply the necessary matter to ensure correctness upon forms sent for that purpose. The Naval and Military portions will be taken from the latest published official lists and revised at Headquarters; in fact no pains will be spared to make "THE HONGKONG DIRECTORY AND HONG LIST FOR THE FAR EAST" a perfectly reliable vade mecum.

It is intended to make this work a medium for Advertisers at a cheap rate, and the charge for Advertisements will be $10 per page in Hongkong, and $12 at Outports.

The size of the Page will be SEVEN INCHES AND A HALF LONG BY FOUR INCHES AND THREE-QUARTERS; this space will admit of a large quantity of matter and all Advertisements will be tastefully and prominently displayed.

Blocks of any description will be inserted, but the same must not exceed the above dimensions.

"THE HONGKONG DIRECTORY AND HONG LIST FOR THE FAR EAST" will, in order that it may circulate extensively, outside this Colony, be published at a POPULAR PRICE, and can be ordered at this Office or obtained from the Agents (list to be hereafter published) for TWO DOLLARS.

There is not space in the compass of an ordinary advertisement to detail all the mass of information it is intended to introduce into the work, but it may be fairly asserted that no such Directory has ever been published, either in Hongkong, or any other part of the East, at the price.

"Telegraph" Office, Hongkong,

October 1st, 1881.
